

The flag of the United States of America from 1861 to 1863.

The southern states were still represented in the number of stars in the flag, since the Confederacy's declaration of secession from the Union was still considered illegal by the United States. In 1863, a 35-th star was added to represent the new state of West Virginia.